TEA ETIQUETTE

1. PINKYS UP?
ABSOLUTELY NOT!

2. HOLD YOUR
TEACUP BY THE HANDLE

3. DON'T CRADLE
YOUR CUP –You should hold your teacup by the handle. This is a very different practice compared to the tea manners in the Eastern world where teacups have no handles and cradling your cup is short of ceremonious.

4. ADDING MILK TO
YOUR TEA – Some people will make a fuss and insist that milk be added to your teacup before you pour your tea – but the truth is, you don't need to. Tea ware used to be cheap and temperamental. To prevent your cup from cracking or shattering, you would pour your milk into your teacup before adding hot tea – this would temper the milk. However, today tea ware is made with a much higher standard. When you add milk to your tea, your teacup won't crack.

If you add milk to any kind of tea, make sure it's black tea. You very rarely want to add milk or sugar to white, green, oolong, or herbal teas.

5. PLEASE, DON'T
ADD CREAM TO YOUR
TEA – Cream is wonderful for your coffee, but it's horrible for your tea.

6. DON'T PUT THE
SILVER SPOON IN YOUR
MOUTH Once you've stirred your tea – from 6 to 12 o'clock – put the teaspoon behind your cup.

7. SLURPING,
SWISHING, AND SIPPING –Slurping your afternoon tea is not proper or polite. You should take care to make absolutely no sound while you're eating, drinking or stirring.

8. DON'T BLOW
IT! LET YOUR TEA COOL
DOWN NATURALLY

9. THE ORDER OF
EATING – You will want to start with your savory food and end with your sweets. Eat your sandwiches first, your scones second, and your desserts last.

10. EAT WITH YOUR
HANDS –Eating with your hands is very polite during tea. Finger sandwiches and bite sized treats are made for eating with your hands. Silverware is provided with soft and squishy cakes and scones that must be spread with jam and clotted cream.

11. DON'T LICK YOUR
FINGERS – Use your napkin to clean your fingers in an unobvious and subtle way.

12. MOST IMPORTANT
RULE OF ALL - Although the rules may at times seem rigid (and there are far more rules than this)...the key is to enjoy yourself, your company and...

HAVE FUN!
